Follow-up activities

Personal experiences

Use the relationship of the two sisters in the book to discuss the children's relationships with their siblings and other family members.

Ask:

Why was it important that the elder sister waited for the younger one?

Do you think that it was fair of the younger sister to stop along the way? Why?

Are you allowed to go places by yourself? If not, who goes with you?

Are you an older brother or sister? What do you like about it? What don't you like?

Are you a younger brother or sister? What do you like about it? What don't you like?

Do you like doing the same sorts of things that your brother or sister likes?

Rewriting

The book is written from the elder sister's point of view. As a group, rewrite the book including the same information but this time from the point of view of the younger sister. For example: "We were going to the playground. I stopped to swing on a post. My sister said, 'Hurry up!' Then I saw a snail. I stopped to look at it and my sister said, 'Please hurry up!'"

Our walk

Children could retell the story as a comic. Provide paper folded into eighths for the cells of the comic. Encourage the use of speech balloons.

When finished the children can compare their version with the book.
